Queens' College dates from 1448, and derives its name from Queen Margaret of Anjou (wife of Henry VI.) and Queen Elizabeth Woodville (wife of Edward IV.). It is a most interesting collection of buildings, with a beautiful 15th century quadrangle. The picture shows the Cloister Court surrounded by its quaint, old-world, 16th century buildings. The doorway leads into the first Court, the Hall being on the right-hand side of this doorway.
